Short sound concert-performance refering to the female sex organ through a reading of French psychoanalyst Julia Kristevas analyses of the «Virgin Mary complex» and the following quote:

«Of the virginal body we are entitled only to the ear, the tears, and the breasts. That the female sexual organ has been transformed into an innocent shell which serves only to receive sound may ultimately contribute to an eroticization of hearing and the voice, not to say of understanding. But by the same token sexuality is reduced to a mere implication. The female sexual experience is therefore anchored in the universality of sound, since the spirit is equally given to all men, to all women»
